THE STORY

> The city was already asleep, but neither of us wanted the night to end. Some goodbyes only happen when the sun comes up. Summer nights have their own logic, where tomorrow feels like a rumour and only the heat of the moment matters. Why do the nights we refuse to end become the ones we remember longest?

LYRICS

Too Hot To Go Home

VERSE 1

The city's glowing on your skin tonight,
Neon dancing in your hazel eyes.
You smile like trouble wearing no disguise,
And suddenly the whole room comes alive.
You lean a little closer than before,
Like you've been here a thousand nights before.
No questions.
No pretending anymore.
Just electricity across the floor.

PRE-CHORUS

Every heartbeat says,
Stay right here.
Every second pulls you near.
No one has to understand...
Just take my hand.

CHORUS

Too hot to go home.
Too close to let go.
Your shadow moving
Inside my soul.
Lose track of tomorrow.
Forget what we know.
Tonight we're fire...
Too hot to go home.

POST-CHORUS

Oh-oh-oh...
Too hot...
Too hot to go home...
Oh-oh-oh...
Don't stop...
Don't let me go...

DROP

VERSE 2

The windows open,
Summer fills the air.
You brush my shoulder
Like you know I'm there.
The music louder,
But we barely speak.
Everything we need
Lives underneath.

PRE-CHORUS

Maybe sunrise
Can wait outside.
Maybe forever
Starts tonight.

CHORUS

Too hot to go home.
Too close to let go.
Your shadow moving
Inside my soul.
Lose track of tomorrow.
Forget what we know.
Tonight we're fire...
Too hot to go home.

BREAKDOWN

If this night disappears,
Promise me one thing...
Don't remember
The ending...
Remember
The feeling.

BUILD

FINAL DROP

Too hot to go home...
Too hot to go home...
