THE STORY

> Two drifting orbits chasing different lights — the same streets, the same pavement, always almost a sign, never quite aligned. Two people can share a city, a bar, even a melody, and still never meet — kept a single greeting apart by fear and pride. How many people have walked beside you, separated only by words neither of you dared to say?

LYRICS

Parallel Stories

VERSE 1

We walked the same streets under different skies
You carried daylight
I carried the night
No wrong direction
No one to blame
Two quiet stories
Never the same

PRE-CHORUS

So close in the frame
But you faced the sun
I stayed in the shade
Just ready to run
Breathing the same air
But a world apart
Your hands in your coat
My hands on my heart

CHORUS

Parallel stories
Side by side
You chase the morning
I chase the tide
Almost a moment
Almost a sign
Two drifting orbits
Never aligned

VERSE 2

We passed the same bar with the crooked red door
You checked your watch
I stared at the floor
You hummed a tune that I almost knew
Words on my tongue that never came through

So close on the corner
You slowed your stride
I swallowed a greeting
You swallowed your pride
Sharing the pavement
Afraid to start
Your keys in your hand
My fear in my heart

CHORUS

Parallel stories
Side by side
You chase the morning
I chase the tide
Almost a moment
Almost a sign
Two drifting orbits
Never aligned

BRIDGE

Maybe in some small life
We say hello
Laugh about all these scenes we never wrote
But here in this version
We just pass by
Carry our daylight
Carry our night

FINAL CHORUS

Parallel stories
Side by side
You chase the morning
I chase the tide
Almost a moment
Almost a sign
Two drifting orbits
Never aligned

Parallel stories
Yours and mine
So close forever
Never aligned
