THE STORY

> Running not to escape the past, but because some of us don't know who we are without it — yesterday remains, no matter how far the road goes. We change cities and routines, yet the past keeps pace with every step, because it lives in us rather than behind us. What would yesterday tell you if you finally let it catch up?

LYRICS

Running From Yesterday

VERSE 1

Empty streets before the dawn
Shadows moving slowly on Every step I try to take
Feels like something I can't escape

The city wakes without a sound
While my thoughts keep spinning round
Every mile I run away
Still brings me back to yesterday

PRE-CHORUS

Some memories never fade.
Some mistakes never change.

CHORUS

I keep running from yesterday,
But the past still knows my name.
Every road I try to take
Leads me back the same.

I keep running from yesterday,
Through the silence and the rain.
No matter how far I go,
The memories remain.

VERSE 2

Morning light across the sky,
Another place, another try.
Different streets and different views
But the same old shades of you.

Every corner holds a trace
Of the life I can't replace.
And the further that I run
The less I know what I've become.

PRE-CHORUS

Some goodbyes stay inside.
Some old scars never hide.

CHORUS

I keep running from yesterday,
But the past still knows my name.
Every road I try to take
Leads me back the same.

I keep running from yesterday,
Through the silence and the rain.
No matter how far I go,
The memories remain.

SPOKEN BRIDGE

Sometimes we run not to escape the past…
but because we don't know who we are without it.

FINAL CHORUS

I keep running from yesterday,
But the past still knows my name.
Every road I try to take
Leads me back the same.

Still I run through fading light,
Trying to outrun the pain.
But somewhere deep inside
Yesterday remains.
