THE STORY

Warmth can feel like a promise when we are cold enough. Someone shelters us from the rain for a night, and we begin to build a home around a moment they never meant to keep. Looking back, the mistake is not in loving too much, but in reading permanence into a passing kindness. When the warmth is gone, what if the place you belong was never inside someone else?

SONG STRUCTURE

I Mistook Your Warmth

INSTRUMENTAL INTRO

VERSE 1

You pulled me close and blocked the rain
And made my whole world feel less strained
I thought your arms were built to stay
A quiet room, a softer place

You kissed the fear I kept inside
And told me I had nothing to hide
I gave you every piece I knew
And built a home that fell right through

PRE-CHORUS

I saw forever in your eyes
You saw one moment drift and die
I called it love, I called it fate
You called it something you could wait

CHORUS

I mistook your warmth for a place I belonged
Held on to your heart when the feeling was gone
I called it forever, you called it a night
I made you my home, but you never stayed mine

I mistook your arms for a place I could stay
But you were already a world away
I thought I was safe, I thought I was strong
I mistook your warmth for a place I belonged

INSTRUMENTAL DROP

VERSE 2

I felt you slipping through my hands
Like old street names washed off signs and plans
I held on tighter every night
While you kept fading out of sight

I gave you all I knew to give
And lost my way just trying to live
I thought your love would make me whole
But I was empty down to bone

PRE-CHORUS

I saw forever in your eyes
You saw one moment drift and die
I called it love, I called it fate
You called it something you could wait

CHORUS

I mistook your warmth for a place I belonged
Held on to your heart when the feeling was gone
I called it forever, you called it a night
I made you my home, but you never stayed mine

I mistook your arms for a place I could stay
But you were already a world away
I thought I was safe, I thought I was strong
I mistook your warmth for a place I belonged

INSTRUMENTAL BREAK

BRIDGE

Maybe you never meant to lie
Maybe I dressed us up in sky
And called those sparks a promise made
When all you gave was light that fades

I don't regret the love I gave
Or every night I tried to save
But now I know what I got wrong
A little warmth can't hold me long

FINAL BUILD

FINAL CHORUS

I mistook your warmth for a place I belonged
Held on to your heart when the feeling was gone
I called it forever, you called it a night
I made you my home, but you never stayed mine

I mistook your arms for a place I could stay
But you were already a world away
I thought I was safe, I thought I was strong
I mistook your warmth for a place I belonged

FINAL INSTRUMENTAL DROP

OUTRO

I used to think that love was home
A place where I would never roam
But now I know, when love is gone
I still have somewhere I belong
