THE STORY

Longing for home can lead us to the wrong doors. We give our hearts to people living borrowed lives, mistaking a moment of closeness for forever, and wonder why each promise turns to dust. Over time we learn that some people were never meant to stay — they were only passing through. What if the home you keep searching for in others was never theirs to give?

People Only Passing Through

INTRO

VERSE 1

I gave my heart so many times
To people living borrowed lives
I thought that love would make them stay
But watched them slowly fade away

I found forever in their eyes
And held on tightly to their lies
I gave them everything I knew
To hearts that were just passing through

PRE-CHORUS

And every time I let them in
I thought that love would finally win
But every promise turned to dust
And left me wondering who to trust

CHORUS

I kept searching for home
In people only passing through
I gave them everything I had
I lost myself, and so did you

I kept searching for home
In hearts that never meant to stay
I thought that I had found forever
But forever walked away

BUILD-UP

DROP

BREAKDOWN

I remember...

How easily I called it love.

How desperately I wanted
Someone to stay.

And how I kept mistaking
A moment...

For forever.

EMOTIONAL VOCAL PASSAGE

I never needed perfect days
Or promises that couldn't stay
I only wanted somewhere safe
A love that time could never take

But every time I called it home
I found myself there all alone
And every heart I tried to hold
Was never really mine to know

BUILD-UP

I kept searching for home...
I kept searching for home...

FINAL DROP

I kept searching for home
In people only passing through
I kept searching for home
In hearts that never meant to stay

EXTENDED INSTRUMENTAL CLIMAX

OUTRO

Maybe home was never
Something I could find in you...

I kept searching for home
In people who were only passing through.
