THE STORY

HER SIDE CONTINUES IN "THE CROWS REMEMBER FACES" · REMEMBERS THE SHAPE, TRACK 00

> Certainty feels easy until something happens that we cannot comfortably explain. Afterward, an old warning acquires a different weight, and a small precaution begins to feel reasonable. We may still doubt the story, even as our hands repeat the ritual. If you were certain nothing was watching, why would you leave something out — just in case?

LYRICS

Feed the Crows

VERSE 1

You said the crows remember faces.
I laughed it off and walked on through.
You said they don't forget a debt owed.
I owe a few, and so do you.

PRE-CHORUS

You said you'd feed them just in case now.
I said that's superstition, not a rule.
You left the bread out anyway there.
I called you nothing but a fool.

CHORUS

Better feed the crows tonight.
Better make the old ways right.
Whatever's watching from the wire,
better feed the crows tonight.

VERSE 2

I saw them circle where you told me.
I didn't feed them, told myself I'm fine.
Three days later something happened.
I've kept the bread out since that time.

PRE-CHORUS

You said you'd told me so already.
I said I'm not the type to believe.
You handed me the loaf regardless.
I took it. Didn't disagree.

CHORUS

Better feed the crows tonight.
Better make the old ways right.
Whatever's watching from the wire,
better feed the crows tonight.

OUTRO

Feed the crows.
Just in case.
