THE STORY

> Unspoken feelings can remain within us long after the moment that first needed them. Giving them a place in the world may take years. When we finally do, there can be peace in allowing them to travel beyond our control, without asking them to bring anything back. What if saying it was enough, even if an answer never came?

LYRICS

I Never Sent It

VERSE 1

I wrote you something from the coastline.
I never found a stamp that day.
You called that night, I almost told you.
I folded it and put it away.

PRE-CHORUS

It's tucked inside my jacket pocket.
The ink's a little smudged by now.
Somewhere in the words I started,
I never learned to say it out.

CHORUS

I never sent it, but I meant it still.
I never sent it, guess I never will.
Some things sound better left unsaid.
I never sent it, kept it here instead.

VERSE 2

I found it folded in my suitcase.
Three years and still the same address.
You've moved twice since I wrote it, probably.
I mailed it anyway, I confess.

PRE-CHORUS

I don't know if it ever reached you.
I don't check if you wrote one back.
Somewhere between the sending and the silence,
I said enough for once, and that.

CHORUS

I never sent it, but I meant it still.
I never sent it, guess I never will.
Some things sound better left unsaid.
I never sent it, kept it here instead.

OUTRO

I finally sent it.
I don't need it back.
